Survey finds opposition to privatisation of forests

A majority of the public opposes plans to sell some of England's forests, a survey suggests.

Three-quarters of the 2,000 polled by YouGov for the 38 Degrees pressure group said they were against the plans.

Ministers want to transfer power from the Forestry Commission, which owns 18% of woodlands, to the private sector, saying this will boost public control.

The Forestry Commission has 150,000 hectares of land in England

Question: 'Fasted, how likely would you be to recommend brand's products to someone else?'

Relationship NPS Quarterly Progress

- End of year target is -5%
- After an increase in the number of promoters and drop in the number of detractors, the overall NPS this quarter is one percentage point away from reaching the end of year target.

The current Tech & Telco syndicated products

- DongleTrack: 2000 mobile broadband users every quarter and a 2000 nationally representative survey. A satisfaction, usage and attitude tracking programme.
- The Smartphone: Mobile Internet, eXperience (SMIX): 2000 smartphone owners and a 2000 nationally representative survey, looking at handsets, mobile operators, renewal, churn, operating systems and the use of apps.
- iPhone iTrack: 1000 iPhone users every 6 months. Why? The Apple brand can over inflate satisfaction, usage and attitudinal behaviour with a particular network operator. iPhone iTrack looks to measure and understand behaviour of iPhone owners to ultimately answer the question... Which network operator is better?
- Tablet Track: launched in August 2010. Understanding the iPad market (currently). This will expand when new consumer electronic companies launch tablets. Over 700 iPad owners and a 2000 nationally representative survey. Looking at usage, attitudes, satisfaction, take up of 3G devices, operator performance etc. Who do these devices attract?

Product Alignment

Andy Morris

From Great Products to an Aligned Product Suite

First the basics – use “product A for this” and “product B for that”, piece them together to complete the research jigsaw

From Great Products to an Aligned Product Suite

Go further – the jigsaw becomes 3D when you recognise that products A and B may answer different questions but the answers are enriched when they are fed into each other

Innovations/New Products

- Continued innovation remains core
- Development of existing products based on client feedback and needs
 - e.g. BrandIndex
- Development of new products to enhance the suite
 - The YouGov brand
 - The YouGov people
 - The YouGov engine
- 2010 = SixthSense, Bloomberg investor trackers, greater panel interactivity
- 2011 = C-suite dashboard, YouGov screen

The YouGov screen and Bloomberg

- The vision of a YouGov screen is being realised
- In conjunction with Bloomberg, we are running a series of economic and sector-based trackers aimed at investors
 - HEAT is an economic confidence tracker in the US, UK and now China
 - HOT is a residential real estate optimism poll running in the US
 - UK HEAT & US HOT both now appear on the Bloomberg terminal
- Sector-based trackers were launched in the US last year. UK trackers launched this month
- Deliverables = data + short reports examining spend within sectors by brand, switching likelihood, etc.
- Further expanding our offering (locally and globally) so that we are producing the volume of syndicated research necessary to make a YouGov screen viable

Reports business will introduce YouGov to new clients and industries ...

Shoppers Scaling Back

Consumers expecting to shop less over the next 30 days

Shoppers are slowing down their trips to the mall—with 27% saying they plan to shop less over the next 30 days than the past (versus 9% increasing their shopping. This is, however, slightly better than August, where 34% said they were going to scale back on their shopping. Looking at selected stores, we see the same

Winners and Losers in the report

- Looking up: COST, WMT, KSS, OMS
- Looking down: SHLD, ROST, ODP, BBBY

Highlights

- Negative outlook still present; shoppers expecting to scale back, but downward momentum slowing from August

Sector reports

- Introduces YouGov to investors particularly those in equity, corporate debt
- Enhances offering to corporate clients with competitive data

January 2011 Household Economic Activity Tracker

January 2011

China, US, UK

China Continuing to Roar; US Starting to Improve; UK Still Sluggish

The Chinese economy continues taking off – driven by the strength of its young workers. Coming on the heels of Chinese President Hu Jintao's visit to the United States, Bloomberg/YouGov interviewed online consumers across the US, UK, and China over the past month (a representative sample of internet users were interviewed in each of the 3 geographies). The differences – and similarities – in consumers' economic attitudes are striking.

Highlights

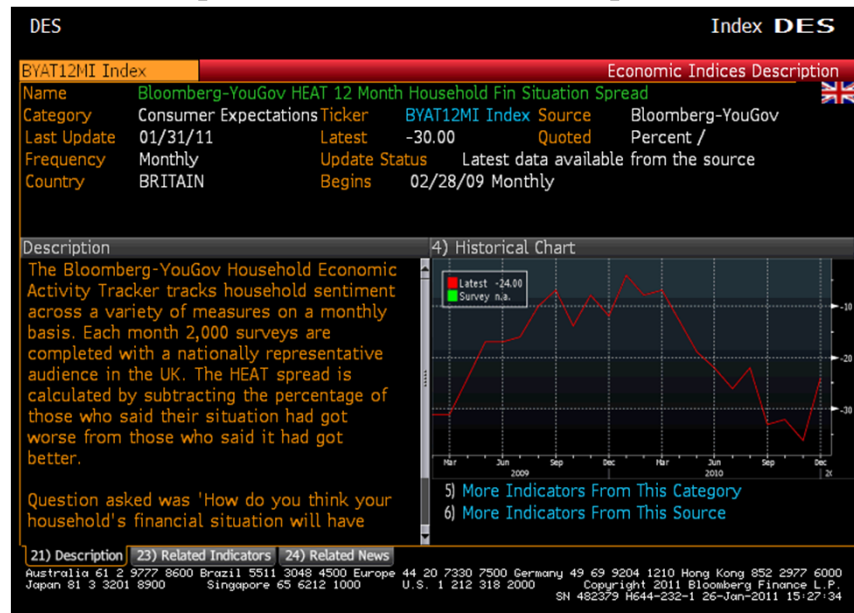

China's consumers showing great strength and are very optimistic about 2011 vs. US & UK consumers

- Younger workers driving China's economic dynamism – majority of 18-34 year olds expecting improvement in employment income, savings, and overall financial situation
- In all 3 geographies, younger workers

Global-macroeconomic reports

- Introduces YouGov to global-macro investors
- Opens up cross-geography comparisons valued by multinational clients, governments, and leading media organisations
